Shonte Harmon-Young worked for six years for St. Louis County's Department of Transportation before joining the Department Diversity, Equity and Inclusion as a Contract Compliance Specialist. Shonte also served for 12 years as president of the board of alderman for the City of Moline Acres where she passed legislation for women and minority inclusion on a local level and ensured that workforce for all capital projects included Moline Acres residents. Shonte is a graduate of Lindenwood University with a degree in Business Administration. She has been married to Cornell for 20 years and together, they raised seven children.